

EPISODE 1: "DONUTS"

Welcome, fellow snackers, to Snack Origins. The podcast where Toomgis talk about how all your favorite snacks get created. Let hear that intro music!

(PODCAST INTRO MUSIC PLAYS)

So, other day, Toomgis hang out by bakery items, enjoying delicious donut. And that when Toomgis think, who genius inventor of donut? And how did donuts be born? So in honor of National Donut Day this month, Toomgis take deep dive into the jelly-filled pieces of pastry heaven.

(HARP MUSIC PLAYS)

While donut may have been 'round for while, the exact born date of donut unknown—like everyone favorite snack giant.

But first record of donut was made in early 1800s. Back when they still called oily cake—that how olden people say, "Me love cake." And that when donut come in all shape and size, all except for the beautiful shiny ring Toomgis know and love today. Donut ring all thanks to 16-year-old Hanson.

Hanson, a Danish boy—but no like a boy-shaped Danish—like real boy from land of Danishes. He need place to put donut down. And since Hanson no have napkin, he poke donut with his finger and make ring with it. Hanson true legend and hero to all.

Then time go on, doughboys and doughnut dollies go crazy. They do every yummy thing possible to donut. (GROWS EXCITED) They fill with jelly. Dip in chocolate. And even make with thing like churros! Uhhhh—Toomgis need donut break now.

(WITH MOUTH FULL OF DONUTS)

Now we have whole day for celebrate donuts. But if Toomgis be honest, every day donut day.

So wherever you hear Toomgis voice, do yourselves favor and go nuts for donuts. But don't forget to subscribe and rate the show. See you next pod. Toomgis your host, and happy snacking!

(INTRO MUSIC PLAYS)